

Present work studies different aspects of information systems security. It describes the information security goals, the designing process of the information system security, most common forms of risks and some basic methods of protection against them. Through the enclosed program it is possible to try out to design security of information system for an imaginary company and test this design through a simulation. The work contains description of this program including user guide, configuration files description, program structure and a short example of use.